Another Wabash Freight Train Hit By Automobile

Twice within a week a second freight train on the Wabash railroad was hit by an auto.

Sunday, January 26, Ira Cowan of Orland Park ran into a Wabash freight train on the 143rd street crossing in Orland Park and on Friday night, January 31, an auto driven by Albert Simon, 31 years old, 702 North Center street, Joliet, an employee of the C. A. Mitchell Brewery of Mokena, crashed into a Wabash freight train at the Marley crossing.

Simon's automobile crashed into the middle of the train, was carried down the right-of-way and finally burst into flames. Simon crawled out unaided, but McCune was knocked unconscious and was finally revived by rubbing snow on his head.

The two got a ride to Joliet and reported the accident at the sheriff's office. Simon said there were no warning gates or bells at the crossing. When deputies went back to investigate they found nothing left of the car but a pile of ashes. The two were taken to St. Joseph's hospital and later examined by Dr. L. O. B. Brannon, physician. Simon received several possible fractured ribs, while McCune had a bump on his forehead and a small cut on his knee.

Frankfort Epworth League To Hold Valentine Social

The Epworth League of the M. E. church will hold a box social on February 14, Valentine Day at the church basement. Young and old are all invited and ladies are to each bring a box to be sold. Members of the league will give two plays called "One House Too Many" and "Suit Your Professor." No admission will be charged.

Take Pictures of M. C. Crossing

Officials of the Inter State Commerce Commission called on Mayor George Sangmeister of Frankfort last Friday in connection with the hearing to be held by the Commission February 10 relative to the installation of flashers at the M. C. railroad crossing east of the depot in Frankfort. Photos were taken of this crossing.

Mischievous Boys Damage Lights

The Mokena village board is making a protest to the school teachers to instruct the school children to refrain from damaging the lights which are placed along the water main trench along Neithammer avenue each night.

Complaint has been made repeatedly that the "pineapples" and lanterns which are placed to ward the open trench, are being thrown into the trench and often times covered with snow by mischievous boys. As a result, new wicks had to be bought and replacements made entailing an unnecessary expense.

Parents should instruct their children not to meddle with these lights at any time.

Orland Soloist Receives Several Church Offers

Royal Glahn of Orland Park who has been the soloist at the Olivet Presbyterian church in Chicago, has received offers for his services from the First Presbyterian Church at 64th and Kinbark and also from the Fourth Presbyterian church at Michigan and Delaware.

Chas. H. Blim Out For State's Attorney

Chas. H. Blim announces his candidacy for the Republican nomination for State's Attorney of Will County in the next primaries. Both from education and experience he feels that he is well qualified to perform the duties of this office. If nominated and elected he says he will devote all of his time to the duties of the office of State's Attorney, which he will reorganize on a business basis, and will enforce the laws of the State of Illinois fairly and impartially.

After receiving his preliminary education, he attended Northwestern University Law School, where he graduated in June, 1917. Shortly after his graduation he enlisted in the United States Army and upon his discharge came to Joliet, where he has practiced law since April, 1919. He is a member of the Will County and the State Bar Associations, the First Presbyterian Church of Joliet, Harwood Post No. 5 of the

Former Orland Couple Celebrate Golden Wedding Anniversary

On Friday, January 31, marked the passage of 50 years of happy married life for Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Hollstein of Frankfort. The celebration drew immediate relatives to their home.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Hollstein were born in Orland Township where they were married on January 31, 1886, by Rev. G. L. Limper of the German M. E. Church. They were the first couple to exchange marriage vows at the Orland Park church.

Since their marriage they have resided in the vicinity of Frankfort. Mr. Hollstein was engaged with farm activities there for many years. For the past sixteen years they have resided in the village of Frankfort. Mr. Hollstein who is 75 years old is enjoying good health and is still keenly interested in news of the day and keeps abreast of the changing times. Mrs. Hollstein who is 71 years old is not enjoying as good health as that of her husband but is able to be up and around.

An anniversary dinner attended by the immediate family and relatives was served at 1 p. m. All seven of their children were present to honor the celebrants. The Rev. and Mrs. C. Schellhase and Rev. and Mrs. C. Hedler of Tinley Park were also present and aided by being on the program. Old-time songs were sung by Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Hollstein and Mrs. Henry Heuser.

The relatives who attended the anniversary dinner were Mr. and Mrs. William Hollstein of Tinley Park, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Cooper of Orland, Mrs. Louisa Andres and son Leo of Peotone and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Cooper of Orland.

The children who attended were: Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Hollstein, Mr. and Mrs. Milton Hollstein and son Carl Eugene, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Heuser and son, Henry Charles and Florence Hollstein, Mr. and Mrs. Schelling of Frankfort, Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Sayers of Palos Park and Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Fisher of Plainfield.

New Lenox Library Opens

The New Lenox Library opens Friday for the first time, in the New Lenox Grade School office. It will be open every Friday afternoon from 2 o'clock until 5:30. So far there have been cataloged, 25 of which were loaned for 3 months by the state library of Springfield. These books were catalogued by the library committee under the supervision of Mrs. V. M. Scron of Joliet, a former Chicago librarian.

The material used in getting the library started was donated by the New Lenox Lumber and Hardware Co., built by Charles Pease, and finished by Leigh Jones. Library cards are 5c a month, or can be had for 50c a year. Any books will be gladly accepted for the library.

The Journey

into the West and its mystic pale,
With faith in the future years,
Up through the virgin forest's trail,
Came this scion of pioneers;
Nurtured at poverty's meager breast
Trained to the woodman's honest quest,
Rugged and fired with youthful zest,
To Illinois came Lincoln.

Into the East and a nation's life,
Stranger to doubt and fear,
Into the midst of the Union's strife,
Went this son of the pioneer;
Leader of men, with kindly heart,
Master of statesmen's subtle art,
Foe to slavery's cruel mart,
From Illinois went Lincoln.

Into the realm of eternal love,
Up from a martyr's bier,
Before the throne of his God above,
Went the soul of this pioneer;
Attuned to hardship, inured by grace,
Emancipator of servile race,
A national shrine his resting place,
In Illinois lies Lincoln.

Bursting of Water Main Leaves Mokena Without Water

Mokena was without water for awhile Tuesday morning as a result of a water main bursting near the old school house corner on Front street. A fire plug at this point has been run into a number of times by automobiles which caused it to leak.

The cold snap Tuesday morning caused the frost to follow the leak to the main, bursting it. All the water in the water tower and water mains system of the village was drained out before the leak was found.

The water mains east from the intersection of Neithammer avenue with Front street were later shut-off and the pumping station worked full blast to fill the water tower.

The village officials were swamped with telephone calls all day from village water users, seeking to find out why their water supply was shut off.

All water users were supplied with water by afternoon, with the exception of those in the east part of the village.

It was fortunate that no fire occurred while the village was out of water.

The street in the vicinity of the broken water main, was flooded and later this water froze into a massive sheet of ice.

No work could be done on repairing this main due to the cold, so it will probably take a few days before work can be started to repair the main.

The WPA office in Joliet has granted local WPA workers to work on repairing the broken main.

All efforts will be made to restore water service to the east part of the village as quickly as the repair work can be done.

Every village water user in Mokena was effected by the break in the main.

BACK FIRE OF TORCH BURNS MOKENA MAN

Mr. J. H. Nordsell of Mokena, Rock Island signal maintainer, was painfully burned about the head and face when a blow torch he was using in thawing a frozen water pipe in the Wm. Evitt barbershop in Mokena, back-fired and sprayed the burning fluid over him. His clothes became ignited and he was afire from head to foot in a flash.

In the barbershop at the time of the accident, which occurred last Friday night at ten o'clock, were Mr. Evitt, Chas. Beckner and his son and Jack Christensen. About as quick as the flames started, a coat was instantly thrown over Mr. Nordsell's head and the flames were smothered. The flames on his clothing were also smothered. Fortunately he did not inhale any flame.

However, his face, throat and top of his head was badly burned. He was rushed at once over to Frankfort to the office of Dr. W. V. Hedgcock, who administered first aid. Altho the burns were severe, it is thought Mr. Nordsell will be able to resume his signal maintainer duties within ten days.

The burning gasoline also was sprayed about the barber shop, scorching the ceiling and floor, but luckily the shop did not catch fire. The blow torch was tossed out doors and a shot from a fire extinguisher put out the burning torch.

DEATH COMES TO MARY SCHEER OF FRANKFORT

Mrs. Mary Scheer nee Klepper life long resident of Frankfort, died January 30 at the age of 64 years and 14 days.

She was born in Frankfort, January 16, 1872. In December, 1903 she was united in marriage with Wm. Scheer who died in September, 1919. Surviving are one brother Fred Klepper, two sisters, Mrs. Wm. Breidert and Mrs. Gilbert Schmuhl, all of Frankfort.

She had been in poor health for several years, but became seriously ill January 1.

Funeral services were held Sunday afternoon in the St. Peter's Evangelical church with Rev. G. Gerhold officiating. Burial was made in Pleasant Hill cemetery at Frankfort.

Mokena Sportsmen Organize Local Unit of 60 Members

The Mokena chapter of the Will County Sportsman's League was organized at a meeting held in the Mokena public school auditorium last Thursday night. About sixty members have been enrolled.

Mr. Fred Cappel was elected president and Dr. E. G. McMahon was chosen secretary and treasurer.

President Smith of the Will County Sportsman's League and R. Wunderlich, secretary and treasurer of the County organization, attended the meeting and spoke, outlining the aims and purposes of the League in protecting game and fish in the county, of feeding game birds in winter time, providing shelter and stocking the timberlands and streams in Will County with game and fish.

Several frozen quail were exhibited at the Mokena meeting, showing that the birds are in dire need of shelter and food during the severe winter weather.

It is understood, plans are being considered to make the Powers and Scheel farms, west of Mokena, game preserves. L. G. Bruder of Mokena has also offered his timberland for like purposes.

Hickory creek is also to be stocked with fish.

All farms in this section and all over Will county are to be posted, thus protecting the farmers against unwelcome trespassers and also protecting the game.

Deputies are to be appointed in each section covered by a local chapter of the Sportsman's League, to enforce the game laws.

The membership dues of the organization are fifty cents per year and all those interested in good clean sportsmanship are invited to enroll.

LINCOLN

Born: February 12, 1809

Emancipator, savior of his country, lover of truth, and champion of mercy... the name Abraham Lincoln is revered and loved by all humanity, regardless of race, creed or nationality. It is fitting that we should pause for a day from our labors to pay tribute to the great martyr who gave so much to his fellow man and to the country he loved, and asked so little in return.

Liberty League Steps Out

Washington.—The American Liberty league has laid aside its swaddling clothes and has put on long pants in the field of politics. Although comparatively new as a group and promoted consistently as non-partisan, the league can now be said to have plunged headlong into the political warfare. If its first big rally can stand as a criterion, its influence is due to be felt in an important way in the forthcoming national elections.

This rally that really marked the league's campaign debut was a picturesque thing. It was picturesque first because of the time and the place and the very nature of the thing and the manner of approach to the voters of the country but it was more picturesque and more important as well because the headline speaker was Alfred E. Smith, one time Democratic candidate for the Presidency, and by all odds the most colorful and pungent speaker of the present day. It was a dinner of more than 2,000 persons—from every state in the Union—and it was held in exactly the same rooms of the Mayflower hotel here where two weeks earlier President Roosevelt had addressed about the same number of persons at the Jackson day $50-a-plate dinner. As a further note of interest, attention might be called to the fact that the meeting was presided over by Borden Burr, a lifelong Alabama Democrat, and the other speakers were Dr. Neal Carothers, a Southern Democrat, long head of the economics department of Lehigh university in Pennsylvania, and former Federal Judge Charles L. Dawson of Louisville, Ky., a Republican.

I referred above to Mr. Smith as being a colorful speaker, and from all of the comments I have heard, it seems to be the consensus that never has he justified the description better than in his league speech. He was introduced by Mr. Burr as "Al Smith of America," and proceeded to assure his audience that included millions listening by radio that he placed patriotism above party, that he was a candidate for no office under the sun, that he had no ax to grind and that such critical shots as he might take were without personal animosity for anyone. But he did not pull his punches when he pilloried the New Deal and he showed no mercy when he drew the deadly parallel between the Democratic platform of 1932 and the policies which Mr. Roosevelt had carried through. I believe it may be said that he reached the peak of his speech when he laid on the speaker's stand copies of the Democratic platform of 1932 and the Socialist platform of the same year and in his best East side twang he challenged anyone to deny that Mr. Roosevelt had been elected on a Democratic ticket and had carried out the Socialist promises.

The President's "breathing spell" utterance, his message to congress on the state of the Union, his staff of advisers, his monetary policies formed other meaty subjects which the former governor of New York picked to pieces in his own inimitable way. He begged congress to assert itself again and quoted from the Bible in his plea it should return to the father's house and be again one of the three branches of the federal government. He said it took courage for a lifelong Democrat to say the things he was saying, but there is no gainsaying he displayed what it took.

Through the speech was Mr. Smith's chosen theme that a great danger lies ahead, a danger that the New Deal will destroy everything which he held had made America the outstanding nation that it is. He accused the President of having arrayed class against class and asserted that what the nation faces is the most gigantic tax burden ever known. To this he added that it will not be the rich who will pay, nor the poor, but "that vast army of individuals with incomes from a hundred dollars a month to five thousand dollars a year."

Finally, in conclusion, Mr. Smith said:

"Let me give this solemn warning: There can be only one capital, Washington or Moscow."

"There can be only one atmosphere of government, the clear, pure fresh air of free America, or the foul breath of communistic Russia. There can be only one flag, the Star and Stripes, or the flag of the godless union of the Soviets. There can be only one national anthem, 'The Star-Spangled Banner' or 'The Internationale,' there can be only one victor. If our Constitution wins, we win. But if the Constitution—stop, stop there—the Constitution cannot lose."

But what of the significance of the league dinner and the Smith speech?

The Smith Walkout

Prior to the dinner, the league's executive council met in secret. Whether it committed the league to a definite stand was not formally announced, yet surely there are grounds upon which to base a statement that it means to support candidates and platforms on the conservative side.

With equal emphasis, it can be said that Mr. Smith has walked out on that section of the Democratic party that sticks by Mr. Roosevelt. He said it was a choice either to "put on the mantle of hypocrisy or we can take a walk." He explained it probably would be the latter course. And frankly it seems with the personal following that he has, a walkout by Mr. Smith cannot be described as other than serious to the party from which that group is defected. It has all of the earmarks of an interesting political situation.

Immediately after Mr. Smith had spoken, quite a few Democrats in congress fired back at him and in defense of the New Deal. Men like Representative Doughton of North Carolina, a Democratic wheelhorse as chairman of the powerful ways and means committee; Speaker Byrnes, and a flock of others. They insisted generally that the Smith barrage was more helpful to the Democrats than campaign speeches they themselves could make. Administration leaders in the executive departments are beginning to fire also, but they are smart enough to let the enthusiasm aroused by the speech die down before they attempt to upset arguments advanced by Mr. Smith.

I have no doubt, from the signs even now cropping up, that an effort will be made in congress to discredit the league. It looks like Senator Black, Alabama Democrat and chairman of the senate lobby committee, probably will dig into the league's files to show how it was financed to a large extent by such wealthy men as the Duponts, among others. Such an investigation likewise will carry an undercurrent of a movement to do away with political influence of such men as John J. Raskob, former Democratic national chairman, a league director, and J. P. Shouse, former executive chairman of the Democratic national committee and the league president. If that fight gets started it will be a mudslinging beauty.

So, summarized, the picture resulting from the league's dinner is that of a major feud, as well as a major political movement, because there is a really bitter fight between personalities in sight as well as the possibilities of a third party movement.

In the situation as it now stands, however, the Republican party holds the key. Smith and his following and the league membership generally can be counted in definite opposition to the New Deal and most all of its works only on condition that a candidate and a platform, viewed by them as sound, are put forward by the Republicans. If the Republicans turn too far to the radical side in their efforts to match the Democratic position (which necessarily must be in support of everything the President has done), then, there is likely to be a third party, which would make predictions of the outcome worthless.

Digging Up Secrets

Congress frequently goes off on a tangent in which it will set about exposing this or that or the other among the practices of private business. In the last several years it has been particularly active in exposing to public view secrets of corporations and individual representatives and senators have blown off much steam concerning salaries paid business executives and they have directed criticism at private business as well for some of its other expenditures.

A few years ago Senator Norris of Nebraska, among others, spoke at great length in criticism of our government's diplomatic service because of the salaries paid and the expenditures allowed for operation of our foreign diplomatic offices. The Norris attack apparently did considerable damage to the diplomatic service because it made many capable men fearful of entering that field where highly trained men are necessary.

But all of the time during which criticisms have been leveled at private business on account of salaries paid business executives and because of other expenses, the senate itself has been going ahead from year to year using taxpayers' money to suit its own purposes. For instance, Col. Edwin A. Halsey, secretary of the senate, lately has made public his annual report covering senate operations and it shows that the taxpayers' money to the extent of $3,296,852 had been spent for maintenance of that one branch of congress. There are 96 senators, each of whom has an office staff; there are some 30-odd committees in operation, each with a staff, and there is the regular senate organization with a large personnel. Consequently, salaries alone take up a considerable chunk of the total outlay, but Colonel Halsey's report disclosed that general "contingent expenses" of the senate had eaten up $701,000. Included in this total of "contingent expenses" was an item of $236,000 for the cost of senate investigations in the last year. Almost half of this amount was used by the munitions investigation committee headed by Senator Nye, Republican of North Dakota, who lately was made the subject of criticism on the senate floor because of his committee's attitude.

ILLINOIS BREVITIES

The state division of highways approved the contract for a highway improvement project in Crystal Lake.

The jury which heard the trial of Ned and Jeff Lumley, brothers charged with murder, hopelessly disagreed at East St. Louis, and was discharged.

Peter Craven, sixty-seven years old, was burned to death when fire destroyed his house, three miles south of Waverly. He lived alone.

Fire destroyed Bandyville school east of Herrin. Ray Barney and Chief Earl Stephens were slightly injured, but no children were hurt.

Circuit Judge D. F. Rumsey sentenced Herbert Mezo and John Morgan, alias Spiller, to the penitentiary for life for the holdup murder of Will Hill, Herrin grocer, last November 19.

A spirited defense of "boondoggling" is to be published by the Federal Works Progress administration of Illinois in the form of a book under that title.

Frank Dey, fifty-six, Plainview farmer, died from internal injuries received when he was crushed against a telephone pole by his automobile, which he cranked while in gear.

Averting the threatened closing of emergency relief stations throughout Illinois, Gov. Henry Horner signed House Bill No. 1, authorizing an immediately effective appropriation of $2,500,000 for emergency relief.

A Circuit court jury convicted Charles Evans, thirty, of East St. Louis, of attacking a nineteen-year-old girl, and fixed his punishment at life imprisonment. The victim and her escort, Robert McClelland, named Evans as the offender.

Howard B. Austin, Sangamon county deputy clerk, has been designated as Illinois' poet laureate by Gov. Henry Horner. Austin's specialty is extemporaneous parodies sung following political speeches, banquets and conventions.

Harold T. Halfpenny, Chicago lawyer, was appointed state director of young Republican activities for the Republican state central committee by John H. Searing, Carbondale, chairman of the state organization. He succeeds Paul Prehn of Champaign.

The state department of public health will inaugurate a new series of radio broadcasts over station WGBS when Dr. Thomas G. Grubb, assistant chief bacteriologist, is to speak on the cause, prevention and treatment of pneumonia.

Although there is an increase of smallpox in Illinois, Chicago need have no fear, Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the board of health, declared. He said: "In 23 months there have been only two cases of smallpox in Chicago and both were persons who were brought here for treatment." Springfield reported eight new cases during the week, and 29 in the state, as compared with four in the same period last year.

Robert J. Dunham, state administrator of the federal Works Progress administration, announced that Illinois had been allotted an additional $10,000,000 for WPA projects, raising the available total from $62,000,000 to $72,000,000. "The additional funds will be used for the program now under way," Dunham said. "Money will be allotted to present projects as is necessary in the progress of the work. It will be spread over the state."

James Garrity of Highwood, a junior in the Deerfield-Shields high school in Highland Park, filed suit for $15,000 damages in the Lake County Circuit court at Waukegan against C. C. Elker, an instructor at the school. Garrity charged that last September he was riding on the rear of a school bus being driven by Elker to the football practice field when it struck a parked car. The student said he was thrown to the pavement, breaking his leg.

The Kane County Circuit court jury which heard charges of embezzlement against four officials of the W. W. Armstrong Investment Securities company of Aurora was discharged by Judge Frank W. Shepherd after it had been deadlocked for 42 hours. State's Attorney George D. Carberry announced that he would seek a new trial. The embezzlement charges were brought when the investment house went into bankruptcy shortly after W. W. Armstrong, the founder, killed himself in May, 1934.

Governor Horner's forces lost their fight to keep the Democratic state central committee from endorsing Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, who was the choice of the Cook county committee and a group of downstate leaders to succeed the governor. Doctor Bundesen, Senator James Hamilton Lewis, and all state candidates were approved by the state committee by a vote of 16 to 9. In the committee's balloting each of the 25 members cast the number of votes which his district gave to the party's candidate in the 1934 primary election. On that basis, the organization slate polled 806,466 and Governor Horner 351,208.

A general increase of nearly 7 per cent both for undergraduates and for graduate students at the University of Chicago, over January last year, was announced by Ernest C. Miller, registrar.

Gov. Henry Horner has appointed Col. Samuel T. Lawton, commanding officer of the One Hundred and Twenty-second Field artillery regiment, a brigadier general of the Illinois National Guard. He will command the Fifty-eighth Field Artillery brigade. In this post he succeeds Brig. Gen. Frank R. Schwengel, who retired from the guard in December.

We Marry Earlier

In the United States today the average age at marriage is 21.7 years for women and 24.8 years for men. Today, women marry four months earlier and men eleven months earlier than they did 25 years ago.—Collier's.

Opportunity May Knock, but More Likely She'll Pass By

It is a dangerous thing to wait for opportunities until it becomes a habit. Energy and inclination for hard work ooze out in the waiting. Opportunity becomes invisible to those who are doing nothing, or looking somewhere else for it.

It is the great worker, the man who is alert for chances, that sees them.—O. S. Marden.

Silent Moments in Which We May Review Our Deeds

Real action is in silent moments. The epochs of our life are not in the visible facts of our choice of a calling, our marriage, our acquisition of an office, and the like; but in a silent thought by the wayside as we walk—in a thought which revises our entire manner of life and says, "Thus hast thou done, but it were better thus."—Emerson.

Exercise and Study Do

Not Affect Child's Sleep

The question of whether or not extremely active play or concentrated study by a child shortly before retiring affects the child's sleep need not trouble mothers and teachers any longer for it is answered with authority by Dr. Glenville Giddings in "Your Child's Sleep," an article in Hygeia.

The sleep patterns of a group of twelve children were recorded by an electric device on nights when they had participated in these activities and on normal nights. Comparison of the sleep patterns of the two periods showed conclusively, the author says, that intensive study of their school lessons or intensive physical exercise in the late afternoon or early evening by normal children has no appreciable effect on their sleep.

THE DOCTORS ARE RIGHT

Women should take only liquid laxatives

Many believe any laxative they might take only makes constipation worse. And that isn't true.

Do what doctors do to relieve this condition. Doctors use liquid laxatives, and keep reducing the dose until the bowels need no help at all.

Reduced dosage is the secret of aiding Nature in restoring regularity. You must use a little less laxative each time, and that's why your laxative should be in liquid form. A liquid dose can be regulated to the drop.

The liquid laxative generally used is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It contains senna and cascara—both natural laxatives that form no habit even with children. Syrup Pepsin is the nicest tasting, nicest acting laxative you ever tried.

Might Break an Arm

You can't push yourself ahead by patting yourself on the back.

GAS, GAS ALL THE TIME, CAN'T EAT OR SLEEP

Adlerika acts on BOTH upper and lower bowels while ordinary laxatives act on the lower bowel only. Adlerika gives your system a thorough cleansing, bringing out old, poisonous matter that you would not believe was in your system and that has been causing gas pains, sour stomach, nervousness and headaches for months.

Dr. H. L. Shoub, New York, reports: "In addition to intestinal cleansing, Adlerika greatly reduces bacteria and colon bacilli."

Give your stomach and bowels a REAL cleansing with Adlerika and see how good you feel. Just one spoonful relieves GAS and chronic constipation. Sold by all druggists and drug departments.

No Need to Suffer "Morning Sickness"

"Morning sickness"—is caused by an acid condition. To avoid it, acid must be offset by alkalis—such as magnesia.

Why Physicians Recommend Milnesia Wafers

These mint-flavored, candy-like wafers are pure milk of magnesia in solid form—the most pleasant way to take it. Each wafer is approximately equal to a full adult dose of liquid milk of magnesia. Chewed thoroughly, then swallowed, they correct acidity in the mouth and throughout the digestive system and insure quick, complete elimination of the waste matters that cause gas, headaches, bloated feelings and a dozen other discomforts.

Milnesia Wafers come in bottles of 20 and 48, at 35c and 60c respectively, and in convenient tins for your handbag containing 12 at 20c. Each wafer is approximately one adult dose of milk of magnesia. All good drug stores sell and recommend them.

Start using these delicious, effective anti-acid, gently laxative wafers today

Professional samples sent free to registered physicians or dentists if request is made on professional letterhead. Select Products, Inc., 4402 23rd St., Long Island City, N. Y.

Oregon Has the World's Largest Siphon

THE axiom that water seeks its own level is the principle behind the siphon. The one shown above is the world's largest, yet in principle it is no different from the little glass siphons used in chemistry laboratories. The Malheur river siphon of the Owyhee project in Oregon is built of steel pipe 80 inches in diameter, and is more than four miles long. It carries the main canal of the Owyhee project through Malheur river valley and over a low range of hills beyond, without requiring any pumping.

BEDTIME STORY FOR CHILDREN

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

LIGHTFOOT DOES THE WISE THING

ALL the rest of that day the hunter with the terrible gun lay hidden in the bushes of the pasture where he could watch for Lightfoot the Deer to leave the place of safety he had found when he swam across the Big River. It required a lot of patience on the part of the hunter, but the hunter had plenty of patience. It sometimes seems as if hunters have more patience than any other people.

But this hunter waited in vain. Jolly, round, red Mr. Sun sank down in the west to his bed behind the Purple Hills. The Black Shadows crept out and grew blacker. One by one the stars began to twinkle. Still the hunter waited, and still there was no sign of Lightfoot. At last it became so dark that it was useless for the hunter to remain longer.

Disappointed and once more becoming angry, he tramped back to the Big River, got into his boat, and rowed across to the other side. Then he tramped home and his thoughts were very bitter. He knew that he would have shot Lightfoot had it not been for the man who had protected Lightfoot. He even began to suspect that this man had himself killed Lightfoot, for he had been sure that as soon as he had become rested Lightfoot would start for the woods and Lightfoot had done nothing of the kind. In fact, the hunter had not had so much as another glimpse of Lightfoot.

The reason the hunter had been so disappointed was that Lightfoot was smart. He was smart enough to understand that the man who was saving him from the hunter had done it because he was a true friend. All afternoon Lightfoot had rested on a bed of soft hay in an open shed and had watched this man going about his work and taking the utmost care to do nothing to frighten him.

"He not only will let no one else harm me, but he himself will not harm me," thought Lightfoot. "As long as he is near I am safe. I'll stay right around here until the hunting season is over, then I'll swim back across the Big River to my home in the dear Green Forest."

So all afternoon Lightfoot rested and did not so much as put his nose outside that open shed. That is why the hunter got no glimpse of him. When it became dark, so dark that he knew there was no longer danger, Lightfoot got up and stepped out under the stars. He was feeling quite himself again. His splendid strength had returned. He bounded lightly across the meadow and up into the brushy pasture where the hunter had been hidden.

There and in the woods back of the pasture he browsed, filling his stomach. But at the first hint of the coming of another day Lightfoot turned back, and when his friend the farmer came out early in the morning to milk the cows there was Lightfoot back in the open shed. The farmer smiled. "You are as wise as you are handsome, old fellow," said he.

SOME GOOD RECIPES

IF YOU like the Chinese dishes this will be one to prepare for the guests who also enjoy them:

Crab and Egg Omelet. If the fresh shrimps or crab is used, cook and cool. Shred one cupful of crab or shrimp. Cut one cupful of lean pork into inch long narrow strips. Use scissors for the cutting. Soak one-fourth of a cupful of dried mushrooms, then cut into strips. Slice one large mild onion and cut fine into strips. Fry the pork in two table-spoonfuls of peanut oil until tender and brown. Add onion, one cupful of bamboo shoots and mushrooms, a table-spoonful of soy sauce. Just before dinner beat six eggs, add the finely cut crab or shrimp and the vegetable mixture. Fry in a small amount of peanut oil, in small bits like a pancake.

Lobster Club Sandwich. Toast bread cut one-third of an inch thick, butter and keep hot. Allow two slices for each person to be served.

THE THINGS YOU THINK

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

THE things you think men care about

When you stay home, when you step out,

Are not the things, it may befall, That people care about at all.

Some are so careful of their dress, Yet guilty of the carelessness,

Some merry night, some busy day, Of what they do and what they say.

The things you think that callers note, And long remember when remote, Are not the things remembered then By other women, other men.

Some are so careful that the drapes Are certain colors, certain shapes, And yet their house may be a place Without a single Christian grace.

The things you think that men discuss When time has had its time with us Are not the things that men relate, Our worth, or wealth, to estimate.

Some are so careful that they leave A great estate to those who grieve, And yet their monument shall be Not money, but a memory.

TRY THIS TRICK

By PONJAY HARRAH
Copyright by Public Ledger, Inc.

HEADS OR TAILS

THIS puzzling experiment has the merit of proving more intriguing the more often it is repeated, for it perplexes those persons who think they can solve it if you do it again.

You let some one spin a coin on the table. Your back is turned while the coin is spinning. As soon as it stops twirling, you announce whether the coin lies heads or tails. Your guess is right.

A lucky guess? Not at all, for each time the trick is repeated you tell the result correctly. That is why it grows more and more bewildering.

You must use your own coin for the trick. Make a nick with a knife in the edge of the coin, on the head side. Listen carefully every time some one spins the coin. If the coin rattles to a slow easy stop, heads will be up. If it stops with an abrupt click you know that tails is the answer.

Honey Is Again Used for

Wounds As in Days of Pliny

Honey as a dressing for wounds was popular at one time in the Middle Ages. Still earlier, during the Roman empire, it enjoyed a certain vogue; and Pliny refers in a certain passage to fish fat and honey as making a good ointment for wounds. It may well be that the fish fat he refers to was cod-liver oil.

Now honey has been re-discovered as a remarkably effective ointment. In a Red Cross hospital in Hamburg, Germany, tests have been carried out with honey during the past half year, and it has been found that even much soiled wounds quickly become cleaner under its influence. But though it cleans a wound, it does not seem to make it heal more quickly than before. As cod-liver oil promotes rapid healing, it has been combined with honey in an ointment so as to achieve the double purpose of cleansing and healing.—Science Service.

News From Springfield

By Bernice T. Van Der Vries
Rep. 7th Dist.

The dormant and probably dead "Soak the Rich" tax program of the federal administration has found a place in the Illinois legislature under a new name quite properly called "Soak Cook County Tax Payers."

On Wednesday the Senate passed Senate Bills 6, 7, 8, 9 and 10 introduced by Senators Hickman, Lantz and Finn from Paris, Congerville and Pana respectively. The bills 6 to 9 empower cities and villages of more than 500,000 population — which means Chicago — to levy a tax of thirty cents per $100.00 of assessed valuation for poor relief and authorize townships to levy the same tax for the same purpose. Senate Bill 10 contains the purpose behind the proposals by providing that the Illinois Emergency Relief Commission shall not provide after August 1, 1936 any relief to any resident of a local political sub division which has not levied the maximum pauper tax of thirty cents per $100.00 assessed valuation.

The bills passed the Senate with a majority vote of twenty-six, after having failed in a roll call the previous week to receive enough votes for passage. They were rushed over to the House and advanced to second reading. Their fate will probably be decided on Wednesday.

Due to the fact that several Cook County townships are partly within Chicago limits, the property owners in these districts would be taxed twice under this program. This would apply in the Seventh District to Stickney with about half its area in Chicago, and to Calumet, Worth, Maine, Leyden, Miles and Norwood Park Townships each of which has about one-tenth of its area in Chicago.

In the House there are 96 members outside of Cook County and since 77 votes only are required, it is not difficult to forecast what probably will happen to the bills there. This is not the first time that a similar tax program has been passed, in fact it is a biennial matter. In 1933 Governor Horner vetoed similar bills.

It seems too bad that the energy spent in passing bills of the type mentioned above cannot be used in working out a modern tax program for the entire state which would be fair to all.

The House spent a couple of days characterized by inactivity. Sessions were late in starting because of the lack of the necessary attendance to pass bills requiring the 102 votes which all emergency bills must receive.

On the calendar are the bills abolishing the Illinois Emergency Relief Commission and appropriation bills for further relief with the date rapidly approaching when more funds will be required.

This week will bring together a legislature shocked by the revelation of conditions in the prison at Statesville as disclosed by the death of Richard Loeb. Many members (according to reports) will join together in demanding a thorough investigation of conditions not only in Statesville and Joliet but in the other institutions in the state. It is hoped that whatever investigations are made will be followed by aggressive action to restore among other things the civil service method of appointments to positions of trust in penal work.

It is rumored that the Governor has his proclamation ready for the call for the Third Special Session. Rumors state that it will include in addition to Permanent Registration, the question of Workmens Compensation and Occupational Diseases. If so, the predictions that the Assembly will remain in session many more weeks may be correct. This would mean that with the Primary Election of April 14th approaching, the discussions on legislation would weekly assume more political flavor.

Kansas City Life Insurance Co. Reports Big Increase

The Kansas City Life Insurance Company, in its report for 1935, states that its total assets at the end of the year were $81,672,130, an increase of $8,205,846 for the twelve months.

The company paid out $6,853,645 on claims during the year, which compares with $8,319,023 in 1934. The excess last year was due to a larger surrender of policies. During the last six years the company has paid out about $50,000,000 during that period.

The company at its annual meeting declared the regular semi-annual dividend of $8 a share. The company's report shows that holdings of the government bonds have doubled since the end of 1934, but holdings of other bonds changed little. Total bond holdings amounted to $29,578,291, against $17,363,374 December 31, 1934.

Cash in banks was $1,148,782, against $1,281,669. Investment in $17,031,843. Net premiums deferred and in course of collection amounted to $2,543,066, compared with $1,990,681.

Total surplus for protection of policy-holders exclusive of legal reserve was $9,396,487. The legal reserve was $71,174,220, against $62,780,376 at the end of 1934. Insurance in force December 31, 1935—$384,586,763.00.

All officers and directors of the company were re-elected at the annual meeting.

A Tinley man suffering from cold feet took a hot water bottle with him when he went to bed, but the next morning the bottle was frozen. Whether this sudden freezeup was due to the cold weather or the man's cold feet has not been stated.

COMMENTS ON THE SEASONS

Spring

All the flowers are budding,
The trees are turning green,
The grass has turned to carpet
For Miss Lady Spring.
She trips over the gardens
And passes the garden wall,
She kisses all the life an' trees
Plus the water fall.

Summer

The colored birds are singing
And everything is ringing,
"Joy of life, for the lover!"
All the grass is smiling,
All the trees are shinging,
For the golden, yellow summer!

Autumn

Everything has begun to droop
With tears in their tiny, wet eyes,
Regretting that they found but one loop—

They were all, too, unwise.
They had lived all too quickly
And had lived their lives away
To find it gone forever,
Forever and a day.

Winter

Snow has covered the earth
In a dead, still hollow sound.
The wind is passing the corner
In a mournful dreary round
And everything's layed empty and bare

And going fast to nowhere.

Distinction is added to the month of February by the birthdays of two of America's greatest leaders, Geo. Washington and Abraham Lincoln. Each February the people of our country estimate anew these two national heroes.

The purpose of National Defense Week, the period from February 12 to 22, is to acquaint the public with the facts concerning the security of our country, the need for armed defense, military training and developing the best possible equipment for our armed forces, to discount the deliberately misleading and false propaganda of the professional pacifists who have now openly associated themselves with communists and other sedition-breeding elements.

The Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States is dedicated to the preservation of safety and security for this nation and its people. Our ideal of peace does not recognize the phrase "at any price". But we do firmly believe in the principle of American neutrality with regards to conflicts between other nations, and we are determined that the United States must never again become involved in war except for defensive purposes.

There is nothing inconsistent in the fact that our organization, made up of overseas veterans of America's wars and armed expeditions, is wholeheartedly enlisted in the cause of peace. In fact, it is because our membership has known the horrors of wars at first hand, that we are determined to strive for the preservation of peace. We refuse to accept the principle that the lives of the men who lie buried in soldier's graves, that the suffering of our disabled comrades in veterans' hospital thru out the land—that the heartaches experienced by our wives and mothers while we were overseas, were all in vain. To allow ourselves to be lieve this would make a mockery of the patriotic principles for which we offered our lives. If the people of this nation learned nothing at all from the World War then indeed is all human effort futile.

We know that the entire citizenry of this great nation is unanimously in accord with the VFW ideal of a permanent American neutrality policy, and safety and security for our shores. In these days of international conflict between Italy and Ethiopia between Japan and China, of internal dissension in other countries, of manifest ambition and greed on the part of rulers and dictators of other lands, the safety and security of America can be guaranteed in only one way—adequate national defense.

America's military unpreparedness thruout the 160 years of her history has exacted a terrific toll in lives and money. Military experts agree that the United States, since 1776, has literally thrown away countless billions of dollars and hundreds of thousands of lives because the emergencies of war repeatedly found her totally unprepared. From the Revolutionary War down thru the years, the United States blindly has refused to learn that raw, untrained, unequipped and undisciplined troops cannot, overnight, be converted into efficient military forces capable of defending their country against the aggressions of enemy nations. In 1812, 1865, 1898 and again in 1918, the United States emerged victorious from war only thru the extravagant waste of men and money which could have been decimated by the permanent establishment of adequate defensive forces.

It is imperative that the people recognize the fact that an adequate national defense is not preparation for war. If we are in a position to enforce our national stand of strict neutrality, then we can hope to make world peace an actuality instead of only an unattainable dream.

MEAT

Easily Made Today

DESIGNS for living come and go—the log cabin yesterday, the moto-home today. Not so long ago, the kitchen wood range; these days push-a-button electric stoves with time-clocks for temperatures.

Meat pies, luckily, live on. But there's a very sane reason for it. When you can perfect a dish which combines the best points of a pie with a whole meat-and-vegetable dinner, tucked away beneath the crisp, flaky crust—there's nothing much for fickle generations to do but to go right on eating meat pies.

That is, there's nothing much you can do to perfect the taste of a really noble meat pie—but a lot has been done about lessening the time and labor involved in making it.

Once Upon a Time

Let's get a kitchen view of an old-fashioned meat pie. It started with cleaning vegetables—peeling potatoes, scalding tomatoes to coax the skins off, scraping carrots, whittling away on turnips and the tedious job of preparing mushrooms. Then you went about cubing things. You cut meat in cubes, you cut carrots and turnips in cubes, and you boiled the meat with the turnips and carrots until the whole thing was nearly done. But you didn't rest and read a movie magazine while this cooking was going on. Not by a jugful. You cubed potatoes, vivisectioned tomatoes and wept over the business of slicing onions. When you'd herded all these things into the pot to elbow about with the meat and other vegetables, you went about making a crust—and not with ready-prepared pastry mixtures either. It was a day in the kitchen—and it had better be a good pie!

Today, However—

Now let's see what the flying trapeze of Time has done for us in a culinary way. We'll toss together a modern meat pie. Open a can of mixed vegetables—tender, well-cooked, cubed and nicely blended vegetables. They're the cream of the garden crop. Open a can of tender cooked meat, or use some left-over meats if you prefer. Combine them, season, add butter, and tender canned mushrooms, or fresh ones if you like.

Your biscuit mixture comes to you ready-prepared, or you can make your own biscuit batter—it's up to you. There's no guess work in this kind of pie. Your meat and vegetables are tender—they've got to be. Your crust is flaky and crisp—quality crust.

In case you want to be orthodox about cupfuls and spoonfuls—and it's not a bad idea—here's a good modern recipe:

Vegetable and Meat Pie: Drain a one-pound one-ounce can of mixed vegetables, saving the liquor for soup. Cut one cup of cooked left-over meat into small cubes, or chop it coarsely. Combine the vegetables and meat, season with salt and pepper and turn into baking dish. Melt four tablespoons butter, add one and a half cups sliced fresh mushrooms (or use canned mushrooms) and sauté gently until tender. Add two tablespoons flour and stir until smooth, browning slightly. Add one cup milk and one cup water slowly, stirring until creamy and smooth, and season with one teaspoon salt. Pour this over the meat and vegetables. Make the biscuit batter described below, and drop by spoonfuls on top of the mixture and bake in a hot—425 degree—oven for from twenty to twenty-five minutes or until a nice brown. This makes six servings.

Biscuit Batter: Sift together one cup flour, one and a half teaspoons baking powder and one-fourth teaspoon salt, and cut or rub in three tablespoons shortening. Add one-third cup milk to one small beaten egg, and combine with first mixture.

ROMANCE
in Tin Cans

IS there anything you can think of that might seem at first blush more uninteresting than a can-making factory turning out millions of empty, tin-coated steel containers at a phenomenal rate of speed? But visit one of these with a can manufacturer who has a real love of his craft, and you will get an entirely different viewpoint. These silvery containers rolling in ceaseless files along metal guides throughout the factory will then glow with romance.

"Where do they all go?" you may ask, since it is obvious that they are not turning out cans at a rate sometimes as high as 320 a minute to keep them all there. "You can't tell to a certainty," he will reply, "where anyone of them will end up. You can't tell whether they'll turn up in your own home, in the restaurant in the Capitol at Washington, in a Park Avenue palace in New York, or in a dingy dump in Painted Post, Arizona. They all use canned foods, you know."

"These reports from the United States Department of Commerce show that those cans you just saw may go anywhere. Here's an inquiry for canned foods from Addis Ababa in Ethiopia. And here's one from Gibraltar."

"Or, if you're looking for picturesque outlets for canned foods, places of which poets have sung and romancers written, how about the following list of inquiries—Santa Cruz de Tenerife, Canary Islands; Batavia, Java; Alexandria, Egypt; Singapore, Straits Settlements; Medan, Sumatra; Cairo, Egypt and Jerusalem."

"These cans may end their useful existence in any one of scores of great cities in Europe. Here are inquiries for American canned foods from Amsterdam, Holland; Glasgow, Scotland; Brussels, Belgium; Prague, Czechoslovakia; Copenhagen, Denmark; Vienna, Austria; Antwerp, Belgium; Rotterdam, Holland; Bordeaux, France; Cologne, Germany; Dublin, Irish Free State; Gothenburg, Sweden; The Hague, Holland; Havre and Lyons, France; Milan, Turin and Trieste, Italy; Nantes, Paris and Rouen, France; Stockholm, Sweden; Zurich, Switzerland; and Bristol, London and Liverpool in England.

Almost Anywhere on Earth

"Or, if you want to swing to quarters of the globe outside of Europe, here are inquiries from Curacao, Dutch West Indies; Montreal, Canada; Rosario, Argentina; Ancon and Panama City in the Canal Zone; Bridgeton, Barbados; Kingston, Jamaica; Bahia, Brazil; Buenos Aires, Argentina; Caracas, Venezuela; Havana, Cuba; La Paz, Bolivia; Lima, Peru; Port of Spain, Trinidad; Rio de Janeiro, Brazil; San Juan, Puerto Rico; Santiago, Cuba; Toronto, Canada; Accra, Gold Coast; Amoy, China; Bangkok, Siam; Calcutta, India; Capetown, South Africa; Casablanca, Morocco; Istanbul, Turkey; Manila, Philippine Islands; Nairobi, Kenya, Africa; Saigon, Indo-China; Hong Kong and Shanghai, China; Tunis, Tunisia and Wellington, New Zealand. Now do those cans you just saw still look to you like stupid, uninteresting cylinders, or have they a life of adventure and romance before them?"

Knox a Soldier in Two WarsVolunteer Rough Rider and Artilleryman But No Militarist.

Soldiers, particularly in the heat of battle, develop a philosophy which is peculiarly their own. To those who have never had their experience, the observations of these veterans sometimes sound cynical or fatalistic. As a matter of fact, they are neither. There never was a good soldier who has not admitted that there were many times when he was thoroughly scared. Consequently, one of the conversational pastimes of the veterans of the World War has sometimes been to tell each other "when they died," meaning that they had been confronted some time or other by situations from which there appeared to be no escape whatever.

Captain "Eddie" Rickenbacker, premier aviation ace of the American army, and Frank Knox, now Illinois' "favorite son" for the Republican nomination for President, once swapped such yarns at a meeting of American Legionnaires, both being among the founders of that organization. Rickenbacker's story was that he thought his time was up when, caught in a "dog-fight" between American and German planes several thousands of feet in the air, the Germans nearly shot off one of the wings of his plane, which began to fall rapidly out of control. Rickenbacker quickly disengaged himself from the cockpit, crawled out on the sound wing and managed so to balance the plane that it partially righted itself. A few hundred feet from the ground he grabbed the control "stick" and landed between the American and German lines in a complete smashup, but without injury to himself.

Knox served with the artillery brigade of the 78th Division. He enlisted as a private in the New Hampshire militia, was transferred to an officer's training camp, having seen service in Cuba, and finally became captain and then major of artillery. When the war ended he was promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel and is known to his old buddies as "Col. Knox." His division served in the St. Mihiel sector early in September, 1918. Two weeks later found it in the battle of the Meuse-Argonne with Sedan as the objective.

When it came Knox's turn to tell his story, he recalled that any soldier quickly learns to know by the whirr of a shell or the sing of a bullet whether "it has his name on it," as the soldiers say. In his tent at Apremont late one night Knox heard a "big Bertha" with "his name on it." Almost instantly his little tent was deluged with rocks, dirt and debris which nearly tore it from its fastenings—but nothing else happened. The next morning Major Knox was invited by his orderly to look outside his tent. A few feet in front of the entrance was the big shell nearly buried in the ground. It had failed to explode.

Knox's narrowest escape, however, was in the Spanish-American war. Volunteering in Michigan at the age of 24, he reached Tampa without being sworn in or assigned to duty with any organization. At Tampa he was introduced to Theodore Roosevelt who promptly swore him in personally as a member of the Rough Riders. Knox participated in all the engagements of that famous regiment up to and including the battle of San Juan hill. In that engagement, the Rough Riders were bombarded out of their first position by the Spanish artillery, waded into the San Juan river and took refuge in water up to their waists beneath a protecting bank, and later stormed and took several hills, including San Juan hill itself, where the Spanish finally ran up the white flag.

In this battle the Rough Riders would charge and lie down and then charge again. The intervals between two of these charges was a little too long for the impetuous Knox, who was tired of lying out in the hot sun. He raised up to sight the enemy and promptly got a bullet through his campaign hat which took a lock of his Scotch gold-red hair along with it. At the end of the battle Knox was detailed to carry dispatches of the victory to the rear. Enroute he was overcome by the heat, developed some tropical ailments and was invalided home just before the final surrender of all Cuba. Mrs. Knox retains the campaign hat among her prized possessions.

In the last war Col. Knox had another surprise which nearly cost him his hearing. Leading up an ammunition train to the support of the guns, he emerged into a field of barbed wire. Just as he rose in his stirrups to locate the guns, a camouflaged and well-concealed battery gave the Germans a blast from a brush-heap only a few yards away. Knox was partially stunned, his horse made frantic and for several minutes he had his hands full keeping the horse and himself out of the barbed wire. When he did dismount, he was stone deaf and remained so for several weeks. In time, however, he regained his hearing almost entirely. After the armistice Knox came home and was chairman of the committee on resolutions at the meeting at St. Louis which resulted in the organization of the American Legion. Knox is neither a jingo nor a militarist. He believes his country should be in shape to defend itself against all comers at anytime. He has volunteered in every war of his country in his lifetime, but he rarely ever talks about them.

thinks about:

Idolatry of Self-Destruction.
SANTA MONICA, CALIF.—Once upon a time there was a strange race that, while in some ways quite civilized, yet worshipped a murderous and a monstrous god.

Now this god demanded human sacrifice. He had high priests who ministered to his images; he had countless devotees who traveled about, gathering in the victims to feed his cravings. The feeble and the careless, the aged dodderer and the unwary child—these were the favorite offerings. Yet the collectors spared none at all, neither the strong nor the halt nor the helpless. Often, in their madness, they destroyed one another. Each year the cruel tally mounted—so many thousands dead, so many hundreds of thousands crippled and broken.

These curious people lived in a place called America, and the god they worshipped was called Speed.

The World-Problem-Solvers.
I'M CONSTANTLY running into somebody who knows exactly what's wrong with the world and what ought to be done about it, but can't make up his mind whether to have his eggs fried on one side or turned over.

At lunch today, I encountered one gentleman who could diagnose all our political and economic ills—just like that!—and name the remedies, too. In fact he did name quite a few while I was looking after the check. And yet I know for a positive fact that his wife won't let him pick out his own neckties and he can't be trusted to cross the street by himself, owing to not being able to decide off-hand which automobile he prefers to be hit by.

Sometimes I think one of our troubles is that we have among us too many who know practically everything and too few who can do anything practically.

The Passing of Kipling.

TWENTY-THREE years ago, I visited Rudyard Kipling at his home in Sussex. Gracious in his hospitality, he nevertheless was already showing signs of the mania for seclusion which, following the death of his only son in the World War, made of him an entrenched recluse.

He shunned people; shunned things; shunned the pageantry of life. He developed an active dislike for Americans—the people whom he once loved and who constituted perhaps his most loyal following. He became that most lamentable of figures among literary folk—the spot marked "D," denoting where a quenched genius was last seen.

Most of us who write are but assimilators and assemblers. Here was a real creator, and real creators don't happen often. His jungle books and his barrack-room ballads; his Mulvaney and his Kim—these will live while men read English and speak it. May that be balm to his passing soul!

Acting for the Movies.

OUT here on this lot, we're finishing up the first moving picture in which Ye Scribe has had a real chance to give his all to art. The picture's to be called "Everybody's Old Man"—that is unless the producers change their minds at the last minute, as is customary, and re-title it "The Rollo Boys in an Igloo" or something.

None of us seemed to feel it while we were shooting scenes, but if everybody is as tired as the old man is, they won't have to rock anybody to sleep. The head cameraman goes on a rest cure soon, and the director's wife just telephoned that she's a little bit worried about him—he keeps hearing brass bands playing, and a while ago he ran out and tried to stop a runaway horse that wasn't there.

I've found out one thing: acting for the movies provides a complete mental rest, but it's very hard on the feet.

Tattooed Ladies.

IN A theatrical paper I read that one of the most copiously illustrated tattooed ladies in the business is fixing to be divorced from a husband who's also of the showbusiness profession. I remember the lady well, sitting on a platform and, in response to requests, slowly turning around so the audience could see what she had to say on the other side.

Well, every man to his taste, but I've always figured life would be kind of fascinating with a tattooed lady for a helpmate. Any time you got tired of talking, you could ask her to let you look at the pictures. And what a boon 't would be for the children, having a comic section for a parent, and vice versa.

Namesakes of Heroes.

IT'S getting so you can tell when twenty-one years have passed since some great national figure—a president, or maybe a military hero—was at the peak of his popularity. It's when a lot of his namesakes get too old for the reform school and are just the right age for the penitentiary. Once in a while one of the crop goes into the ministry, but apparently not enough of them to make much difference in the grand total.

Chicago Hog Prices Strong On Days of Heavy Direct Receipts

Hog prices at the Chicago market tend to be highest on Mondays and Fridays, the same days on which direct receipts of hogs by Chicago packers are generally largest.

This fact was discovered in a study of hog prices and hog receipts at that market conducted by the U. S. Bureau of Agricultural Economics.

Previous to this study, the belief was held in some quarters that large direct receipts of hogs by Chicago packers had a depressing influence on market prices. It was argued that the packer buyers were weak bidders on those days. Overlooked was the fact that though large direct receipts removed a portion of the demand for hogs at the central market, they also removed an equivalent portion of the supply which balanced the lessened demand.

No competition was lost by this process. It was simply moved out to the interior markets, where it is no less effective in maintaining the level of prices justified by current conditions of supply and demand.

Results of the federal study are shown in the accompanying chart.

Direct Hog Receipts—Chicago

Average Daily Prices—Chicago

The top half of the chart shows that the number of hogs received direct by Chicago packers is usually greatest on Mondays and Fridays. The bottom half shows that hog prices on the Chicago market on these same days are usually higher than the average of those prices for the week. Data were supplied by the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Direct Selling Has Increased Competition

Striking evidence of the competition for livestock which exists between interior markets in the Corn Belt is pictured in the map above which shows the situation as it exists in Iowa and Southern Minnesota.

The large dots show the 14 major interior packing plants, and the small dots the 70 concentration points and buying stations. The radiating lines indicate the points from which hogs are sold direct to these interior market outlets.

Overlapping lines reveal the competition which exists. The map does not show the competition from central markets, from the more than 600 retail dealers and small packing plants which slaughter livestock, nor the competition from packers in other States that is available to producers in Iowa and Minnesota who sell direct to those markets. If these were added, the map would be too black to read.

Competition of much the same nature exists between direct markets in other Corn Belt States. Of interest in this connection is the following quotation from U.S.D.A. Miscellaneous

Publication 222, "The Direct Marketing of Hogs."

"There is a market difference in the character of competition at public markets and at interior buying points. At public markets the competition is for a supply of hogs that is physically present, largely out of the control of the producers, and under the necessity of early sale. At interior points it is a competition to draw hogs, that are still under the control of the producer, to different points. Competition at the public markets is more apparent than at interior points since relatively large numbers of buyers and sellers in personal contact are readily observable at the former, while at the latter the chief evidences of competition are the posted prices and the telephone or personal requests being received for bids on hogs."

But to the producer at home with hogs for sale, the latter competition is more useful since he is in a stronger position opposite the buyer with his hogs still at home than he would be if they were at a public market and had to be sold."

Quality of Hogs Same at Direct and Central Markets

As the percentage of hogs sold direct to interior market has increased, a belief has arisen that the direct markets are receiving a preponderance of the good quality hogs, which in turn is believed to have increased the proportion of low-grade hogs received at central markets.

In order to ascertain the facts, the United States Bureau of Agricultural Economics sent a group of investigators to 132 markets in 15 leading hog-producing States in 1933. Working in all types of markets, these investigators classified nearly 200,000 hogs as to quality and weight.

They found that, in general, all types of markets, whether direct or central, receive what is called "mine run" of hogs. The direct markets received 15.6% of choice hogs as compared to 15.4% for central markets, 51.1% of good hogs as compared to 50.7% for central markets, 30.9% of medium hogs as compared to 30.4%, and 2.4% of cull hogs as compared to 2.5%. (See chart below.)

As a result, the government men concluded that if all hogs were sold through the central markets, the proportion of each grade would be substantially the same as it is now when part are sold direct. They further concluded that direct selling has not deprived central markets of supplies of the various qualities of hogs sufficient for registering prices for the different grades.

Proportion of Each Grade of Hogs
Received at: Central Markets
Direct Markets

102,278 hogs graded at central markets; 96,104 hogs graded at direct markets. Source: U.S. Dept. of Agriculture.

Federal investigators, after classifying nearly 200,000 hogs, found that the quality of hogs received at the average central livestock market is practically identical with the quality received at the average country or direct market. Cross-hatched columns represent hog receipts at central markets and solid black columns show receipts at direct markets.

You're The Loser

WHEN you allow Headache, Neuralgia, Muscular, Rheumatic, Sciatic or Periodic Pains to keep you from work or pleasure. You can't go places and do things when you are suffering—and the work or good times won't wait for you.

Why allow Pain to rob you of Health, Friends, Happiness, Money?

DR. MILES ANTI-PAIN PILLS have been used for the relief of pain for more than forty years. They taste good, act quickly, do not upset the stomach, nor cause constipation, leave no dull, depressed feeling.

Thousands have used them for twenty, thirty, forty years, and still find that nothing else relieves pain so promptly and effectively.

Why don't you try them? Once you know how pleasant they are to take, how quickly and effectively they relieve, you won't want to go back to disagreeable, slow acting medicines.

You too may find quick relief. Why wait forty minutes for relief when Dr. Miles Anti-Pain Pills will relieve you in ten to twenty minutes?

As a household remedy I have never found anything that equalled Dr. Miles Anti-Pain Pills.

I never found anything that was so good to stop pain as Dr. Miles Anti-Pain Pills. I have told many about them and I find they are all using them.

I have been using Dr. Miles Anti-Pain Pills for years. I keep them on hand all the time. I can certainly recommend them for pain.

Miss Audra Seybold, 2417 W. 2nd St., Dayton, Ohio

Your Anti-Pain Pills have been a wonderful help to me. I have used them for three years and always keep them on hand.

I have used quite a lot of Dr. Miles Anti-Pain Pills. They are fine pills to stop pain.

Mrs. E. Pierce, Lapwai, Idaho

Mrs. J. L. Kester, Shickshinny, Pa.

I have been using Dr. Miles Anti-Pain Pills for thirty years. No matter what kind of pain I have, they stop it almost instantly. Never without the help of the house.

"I may if you don't fetch the blanket," he said. "A fire on the shore means nothing of itself. Just an Indian camp—John Buck and his squaw. We'll have to signal."

The word sent her bounding up the bank. She came flying back with the blanket. Garth ordered her to hold one corner. He took another. They stood in front of the fire, with the big blanket stretched between them. Mr. Ramill called irritably from the top of the bank. What did they mean, wakening him and taking away his bedding? Lillith cried out the glad news. Garth gave her a curt order to pay attention. At his commands, she began to stoop and rise in unison with him, lowering the blanket to the sand and jerking it up again in front of the fire, at irregular intervals.

After some time he ordered a halt, with the blanket on the ground. He added an explanation: "Those were dots and dashes. We've given the SOS—and my name. They may not have made it out. That light is nearer, but it has not turned. Ready now. We'll repeat."

He went through another series of long and short liftings of the blanket. They again paused with the blanket down. Garth stepped out of the fire glow to peer over the water. Lillith followed.

Above the low-hung star another star flashed on and off. Across the silent, glimmering flood of the river came the hoarse blasts of a steamer's whistle, muffled by distance yet unmistakable.

"All right, Miss Ramill," Garth said. "Tell your maid to pack your luggage."

She asked in a low voice: "Haven't I tried to play up? Is it sporting of you to mock me?"

Her face was shadowed. He could not see the look that went with the questions. After a moment, he answered soberly: "It is not, and you have. Permit me to apologize."

"Is that all?"

"What else?" he replied. "You are of course relieved and pleased to be rid of a man you so thoroughly hate. You may rest assured I will not intrude, once you're aboard ship."

"Yes," she murmured, "when Dad and I no longer have any need of you to—"

Her father came staggering down the bank to stand in between them. "I say, Garth!—don't lie. Is it true the steamer is putting in for us?"

Doubtful of a safe night landing at this unused beach, the steamer captain lay off-shore and sent in a canoe. Garth steered Mr. Ramill into the birchbark. At the same time Lillith stepped in ahead of her father. She repeated the maneuver when the two Indian paddlers drove the canoe out alongside the little river steamer.

Garth saw no more of the girl until after the steamer tied up at Fort Simpson, the trading post at the mouth of the Liard river. Taken into a stateroom by the wife of a missionary from Fort Norman, she remained in complete seclusion.

Her father kept almost equally close in the skipper's own room. The canny Scot had welcomed the American millionaire to his bunk—for a consideration. The cabin was jammed with fur traders and Fort Norman oil-field officials, who were going outside for the winter. Garth messed and berthed forward with the crew. He kept to his worn buckskins. But a sleet-squall ended the pest of flies and mosquitoes. He was able to shave and cleanse his skin of dope, yet enjoy the fresh air on the unscreened deck.

When the building-topped bluff of Fort Simpson was sighted in the distance, Mr. Ramill left the cabin and came forward. Though not yet fully recovered from his wound, he walked with the springy step of a lean-waisted middle-aged gentleman in healthy training. After the snagged and stained leather suit, the clothes loaned him by the skipper looked startlingly respectable. The same was true of his clean-shaven dope-free skin.

He stopped before Garth, bland-faced, shrewd-eyed.

"I've just heard, my boy, that you think of stopping off at this post. I trust it's not on account of any feeling against me or my daughter. You can't blame her for a bit of resentment. She's a woman, and you certainly put her through the mill. As for myself, I called it quits when you pulled me out of the hole this last time. What d'you say?"

He tossed his half-smoked cheap cigar outboard and held out his once-flabby now firm-muscled hand. Garth gave it a hearty grip.

"All accounts squared, sir, and no hard feelings against either of you. Miss Ramill proved herself far more plucky and sporting than could have been expected. I wish you both bon voyage."

"But for you to be leaving the boat, my boy! There's no need of it. I can arrange for you to get into the cabin. In fact, I'd like the opportunity to talk over matters. We might still get together on those terms you offered."

"We might," Garth agreed; but then his smile hardened. "That side of the matter will have to wait. I shall first settle with your friend Huxby."

The millionaire frowned. "Don't call that murderous hound a friend of mine. His shooting you is understandable. My wounding was of course what he claimed—sheer accident. But for the scoundrel to abandon a helpless girl to starvation! If he was too cowardly to dare her frenzied threats and forcibly take her and me with him in the canoe, he could at least have had the plane come for us."

"If you care for my guess," Garth said, "he was more interested in your daughter as an heiress than as a woman."

"No guess about it. A cold-blooded rascal who would have murdered you for your claim! I'll run him down and make him pay in full for deserting Lillith and me, if it costs a million."

"His punishment will cost you nothing, Mr. Ramill. He has been trapped by his own greed."

"Trapped?"

"Before we came aboard, word was received by radio that a man named Huxby had recorded a platinum placer claim at Fort Smith; that he had bought a large airplane, and flown north with three miners."

Mr. Ramill looked his doubts. "I've heard nothing of it."

"Because I thought best for you not to."

"You! Do you mean to tell me that everyone on this steamer kept mum because you, a mere prospector—" The millionaire paused. "Have I been blind? You are not a common prospector. There's something about you . . . in spite of your vagabonding about this north country!"

Garth said: "We are talking about Huxby. I've radioed for a Northwest policeman to meet me at Simpson with a plane. The charges are robbery and assault to murder."

"Radiced? The skipper told me his transmitter was out of order."

"By my request, sir. I thought it as well to keep you out of the affair. It is possible Miss Ramill may have recovered from her resentment against him. I'll ask you to pardon my going to see if there are any more reports on Huxby's movements."

Though by no means curt, the dismissal was abrupt. Mr. Ramill stood pondering for several moments before he returned to the cabin and went to the door of the stateroom that the Fort Norman missionary's wife had shared with Lillith.

Some time before the steamer nosed in to the landing, Garth made out that the pontooned plane afloat at the waterfront was too small to be one of the regular Bellanca transports. It had no cabin, and only three seats. Foremost of the passengers ashore, he at once climbed the bluff to the post.

As he expected, a red-coated constable of the Northwest police was lounging in the old trading post store-room with one of the Airways pilots. The latter sprang to meet him.

"Hallo, 'Lan—you d—n' lame duck! Helluva note, you squattering in the wet all these months. Could've cruised your frozen hell a hundred times in any old crate."

Garth gripped hands with him. "Lo, Kiwi! I didn't happen to be after airports. There are things you have to rub your nose against to see."

"And smell! I've heard of your Eskimo igloos. Count me out—completely outside. Indian huts are enough and to spare."

Garth sobered to business. "What news?"

"Your man set his bus down here three days ago. Hopped off PDQ, with all she could heave up under—gas and oil."

The constable had stood at attention. He met Garth's glance with a salute. "All ready, sir."

"Good work, Dillon. One question—those three miners?"

"Broke prospectors, sir. Records, far as known, not savory. But none of the bunch is wanted, and they're not newcomers from across the border. They'll know enough not to interfere when I take my prisoner."

The post factor came hastening in to shake hands. "Pardon my absence, Mr. Garth. Was up the Liard. It's a great pleasure to have you stop off with us. If you plan to take in dogs, I have a picked team that I'd be honored—"

"Thank you, no," Garth cut in. "But I would like a rifle, rabbit undersuit, winter moccasins, gloves, and three pairs of webbs."

He turned to the pilot. "Season more advanced up there. Blizzards off the Selwyns; the lake probably starting to freeze. Enough stream-flow, though, to keep a clear runway for your pontoons, if we don't loiter all week."

He went into a bunkroom to put on the rabbit-fur suit under his buckskins. When he came out, a girl in a plain, ill-fitting gown stood talking to the pilot. The pilot glanced towards him. The girl turned quickly. He found himself face to face with Lillith Ramill.

Yet it was not the grease-and-pitch marked face of his canoe companion.

Nor was it that deep-lined rouged and powdered face with scarlet-smudged lips that had sneered at him on Tobin's wharf. It was a face smooth and firm, vivid with life and vitality. Only the blue eyes were hard.

"Alan Garth," she said, "I've learned all about it. You're going back there—after him!"

"Sorry, Miss Ramill. It's not revenge, if that's what you think. I tried to spare you. But, if you must have it, he is a thief."

The girl's eyes flashed. "Worse! He's a cowardly murderer. That is why I too am going to see him taken prisoner."

"You?"

"Yes. I am going to see him cringe, the sneaky beast! Do you think I've forgotten how he crept up and shot you when you weren't looking? And what if he didn't intend to shoot Dad? He left him to die. If that's not enough, must I tell you how he taunted me? He jeered that I'd be starved into welcoming him by the time he came back for me."

"Yet that's no reason why you—" "It is! You shan't go without me. If you refuse, there's another plane just come. I'll make Dad charter it for me. I'll have the pilot tag after you!"

Garth studied her gravely. She stared back at him, hotly defiant. He pretended to accept her reasons for wanting to go:

"You most certainly are a good hater, Miss Ramill. One thing, though. The valley is about to freeze up. It will not be the summer paradise we left. We may land in a blizzard."

She looked around the store. "Where are those Eskimo suits you told me about?"

At that he smiled a bit grimly. "This is Indian country. You shall have rabbit and buckskins." He turned to the factor: "Add the lady's outfit to my account." To the pilot: "Kiwi, this is where you are to fit your name. You're going to be a wingless ground bird."

"Oh, have a heart, 'Lan!"

"There is a crowd, and she is it. Ask her father."

For the first time the girl betrayed a trace of doubt. "But we'll have to have a pilot."

Kiwi stared, then grinned at the joke. "Lady, what you don't know about our boy friend would appear to be quite a considerable. All right, you lame duck, go hog the joystick. Do I stay planted or take the watercraft?"

"Steamer. Southbound planes are apt to be overcrowded, with everyone coming out," Garth replied. "Now, Miss Ramill, we'll go down and get your father's visa on your passport."

Constable Dillon put in a word: "It's not on the cards, sir, to take along a young lady. If this Huxby tries to act up—"

"He's your meat, Dillon. I'll stand responsible for Miss Ramill."

Down at the waterfront, Garth went over the plane with his pilot friend. There was a full load of gasoline and a change of oil. To the week's supply of provisions, he added the three pairs of snowshoes and the new rifle. With the rifle came enough cartridges to refill the belt that still held his knife and belt-ax.

Lillith had gone aboard the steamer. She returned with her father. He looked worried. She had put on her Indian-woman costume—buckskins, moccasins, fur cap and gloves. The millionaire chose to lay the blame on Garth.

"Have you gone insane? No more than get her out of that muskug hell, and you want to drag her back to your infernal hole in desolation!"

"The lady's choice, not mine."

"Well, you're taking her."

"How can I help it, sir? You are her father. Why not assert your paternal authority?"

Lillith brushed aside their trifling. "Which is my seat?"

"The rear—Close her in, Kiwi."

She turned to fling her arms around her father and kiss him. It was the only caress Garth had ever seen her give anyone.

As he put on his pilot friend's helmet and goggles, the constable mounted to the middle cockpit. Kiwi handed the girl into the rear one. He drew over her head the shatterless glass cow that almost covered the opening.

Garth spoke a last word to her anxious father: "In all probability, sir, we'll overtake you within three or four days. May, however, have to lay over, in case of storm. If fog or snow makes us miss you on your way out, we'll probably meet at Fort McMurray."

Mr. Ramill came close. "Garth, there's something I can't understand. This crazy notion of Lillith's, I mean. It's not mere willfulness. She has something in mind."

"Wants to see the handcuffs slipped on Huxby," Garth replied. "Can you blame her? Mangled vanity. Had believed he loved her for herself at least as much as for her inheritance. 'Hell hath no fury like a woman scorned'—all that, you know."

"Not all, Garth—no! There's something else. I can't make her out. Something different about her."

"Perhaps she'll tell you when we come out. I'll of course do what I can for her."

Garth shook hands, and swung aboard the small craft. At a sign from him, the displaced pilot gave the propeller a spin. The plane swung around, to taxi downstream.

There was no hurry. Had Huxby schemed to fly into the valley merely to stake the placer in his own name and hop out again, he would not have taken the three miners. He undoubtedly had planned to do his season's assessment work. That would mean a shaft sunk to bedrock, so that he could bring out a load of the platinum-gold alloy.

Midway of the down-river flight, the three-seater ran into a sleet squall. Garth dropped to the water and tied up under the lee of a spruce-black point. When Lillith demanded to know the cause of the delay, he explained how sleet may put a plane into a spin by freezing on the wings.

The squall blew over, leaving everything sheeted with ice. Garth and Constable Dillon knocked clear the front edge of the wings. Another hop brought the party to the emergency refueling post, shortly before sundown.

This time Lillith Ramill did not refuse Tobin's crude hospitality. She troubled the old soundproof far more by insisting upon watching his preparation of supper and breakfast.

He could not at first believe she was the painted lady who had scoffed at his "garbage." She not only refrained from scoffing, she ate his bacon and porridge as heartily as Garth and the policeman.

The moosehide canoe lay upturned on the bank beside Garth's old birchbark. Tobin had at once told Huxby's story. According to the engineer, the lady and her father were still marooned in the mountains. He had come out with Garth to fetch a plane for them. But Garth had been killed by a wounded she-grizzly.

Gypsy Race Much Mixed; Fourteen Dialects Used

The gypsy race is now a very much mixed one, with elements of the blood of all of the countries in which they have resided; and gypsies from one part of the world may present characteristics and appearances quite different from those of another part, notes a correspondent in the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The English word gypsy reflects the old belief of many countries that the gypsies were Egyptians. In other countries they were called Tartars. The old agreement of the traditions concerning them was that they had come to Europe out of the east.

Modern inquiry has revealed a good deal of their true history, however, and has established that the race is originally from northwestern India. Bands of the inhabitants of this region were driven away from their homes and set wandering by hordes of northern invaders which swept down upon them in the Ninth century.

These forerunners of the modern gypsy moved into Kabulistan and Persia, and ultimately filtered through Syria into Egypt and northern Africa and through Turkey into Europe. There are now 14 or more distinct dialects of their language in European countries—indicating their widespread distribution.

Languages and Tongues

Language is a term that is applicable to any mode of conveying ideas, whether by speech, writing, hieroglyphics or a system of gestures or pantomime. Even the deaf have several languages, but cannot be properly said to have "tongues." Tongue is an English term for the spoken language of a particular people, as, the French tongue, the German tongue, and so on. Meillet and Cohn in "The Languages of the World" index 6,760 named tongues and systems of writings. That work classifies speech as of (1) country (2) town, (3) village, (4) island, (5) river, (6) tribe. Dialects are included.

Lesson for February 9

JESUS INSISTS ON RIGHTEOUSNESS

LESSON TEXT—Luke 6:39-49. GOLDEN TEXT—Why call ye me, Lord, and do not the things which I say?—Luke 6:46.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Tells Us What to Do. JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus' Code for Helpers.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Overcoming Our Faults. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Test of Our Religion.

In verses 20-23 Jesus sets forth the inner spiritual condition of those who are members of his kingdom. In the lesson text for today he sets forth the principles governing the life of his followers.

I. Love Your Enemies (v. 29).

Love here is not mere natural affection. Love is not sentiment but is the sincere desire for the welfare of another, and the willingness to do all in one's power to accomplish that which is good for the individual. To love friends is easy, but to love enemies is only possible to those who have been born again.

II. Do Good to Them Which Hate You (v. 27).

Love is positive in its nature. The disciple of Christ will not merely refrain from doing injury to one who hates him, but will be concerned with and engaged in doing good to him.

III. Bless Them That Curse You (v. 28).

To bless means to speak well of, to invoke a blessing upon.

IV. Pray for Them Which Despitefully Use You (v. 28).

It is obligatory upon the Christian to pray for those who heap abuses upon him. The best commentary on this is Christ's own example. "Father, forgive them; for they know not what they do" (Luke 23:34). When Christ was reviled he reviled not again; "When he suffered, he threatened not; but committed himself to him that judgeth righteously" (1 Pet. 2:23).

V. Patiently Endure Wrong and Injury (v. 29).

The Christian is not to bristle in defense of his rights, but rather to suffer insult, injury, and even loss. This expresses the law which governs the individual's action and should not be pressed so far that evildoers go unchecked. Rightly constituted government has been ordained of God for the protection of the innocent and punishment of evildoers (Rom. 13:1-8).

VI. Give to Every Man That Askest of Thee (v. 30).

This text does not authorize promiscuous giving, neither does it mean that any request made by the idle, greedy, and selfish should be granted. There is a giving which injures the one to whom the gift is made. It would not be proper to give a man money to buy whisky. The principle enjoined is to give the thing needed to the one asking. The supreme need of every able-bodied person is to be given a way to earn his living.

VII. Do to Others as You Wish Others to Do to You (vv. 31-35).

This is called the Golden Rule. It is the sum total of Christian duty as it pertains to human inter-relations. If this rule were lived up to, the problem of capital and labor would be solved, war would cease, international relations would be peaceably adjusted, and all profiteering in business would end.

VIII. Be Merciful (v. 36).

This means to be filled with pity and compassion; to enter into sympathy with every need of others. Our supreme example is the Heavenly Father.

IX. Censorious Judgments Condemned (v. 37).

This means that the evil or false in others should not be sought out. We should not sit in critical judgment upon the action of others. This does not, however, prohibit the estimation of others by their deeds.

X. Compensations of Right Living (v. 38).

The believer who gives freely of money, loves sincerely, makes the Golden Rule the standard of his life, shows mercy and kindness to others, and refrains from impugning the motives of others, will be fully rewarded.

XI. Danger of Following False Teachers (v. 39).

The teacher who does not know God and the way to heaven will lead others into ruin. Only such as know God should be followed.

XII. Those Who Reprove Others Should Live Blameless Lives (vv. 41, 42).

Evil doing should be removed from our lives before bringing others to account.

XIII. The Sin of Profession Without Fruitbearing (vv. 43-46).

The one who is in fellowship with God will practice the principles which reveal God's nature.

A Rose

Every rose is an autograph from the hand of the Almighty God. On this world about us he has inscribed his thought, in those marvelous hieroglyphs which sense and science have been these many thousand years seeking to understand. The universe itself is a great autograph of the Almighty.—Theodore Parker.

A Good Book

A good book is the best of friends, the same today and forever.—Tupper.

Slenderizing Surplice Tops an At-Home Frock

PATTERN 9609

What if you do wear a forty-six? No need to sacrifice femininity on that account, for a frock with gracious, slimming lines can make you look as young as you feel. Why not choose an easy pattern with surplice bodice for your next "at home" style—like the one sketched today? Simplicity is the keynote of those sweeping lines that outline the collarless, surplice yoke. The slenderizing effect carries right on down into the skirt—a clever piece of designing, we'd say!

Pattern 9609 may be ordered only in sizes 16, 18, 20, 24, 26, 28, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46. Size 36 requires 3½ yards 36 inch fabric. Complete, diagrammed sew chart included.

SEND FIFTEEN CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, STYLE NUMBER and SIZE.

Send your order to The Sewing Circle Pattern Dept., 232 W. Eighteenth St., New York, N. Y.

General Lee's home, Arlington, now is Arlington National cemetery, where rest the dead of the Revolutionary war, the Mexican war, the bodies of men who fought with the armies of the blue and gray, the Spanish-American war and the World war.

WOMEN ARE NOT SO "EASY" AS MEN
IN FLATTERY GAME

"What do you think of the claim that women like admiration and flattery as much as men and are no less fools than men in the hands of one of the other sex who uses that method of getting into their good graces?"

"Don't you think that's ridiculous?" I've never yet met a man who wouldn't believe anything charming and delightful about himself that any woman might tell him. But I've seen many a man try to bamboozle a woman and fail because he laid it on too thick." This was asked of a woman writer of note, who replied as follows:

I think our reader has hit upon an important truth in the relationship of the sexes.

I do not doubt for one moment that women like admiration as much as men—that is admiration from the other sex. Indeed I believe this is in a way a more important factor with women than with men. By that I mean that while men may "eat up" admiration from the other sex, that is not the motivating factor of their interest in them; while with some women delight in masculine admiration is largely the root of their enjoyment of the society of the other sex.

But—women are not so "easy" as men. A homely woman does not easily accept a man's insistence that she is beautiful, but many a bald, fat man has been convinced he is an Adonis. Women can be flattered, but it has to be done more subtly. Therefore the man who is wise will discriminate in his flattery. He will look for the "good points" which in some form or other are possessed by every woman, and concentrate on them, rather than attempt to endow her with charms which she realizes are not hers.

It is not that women like flattery less, but they have more difficulty than men in putting entirely to sleep their intelligence and common sense!

BEFORE you take any preparation you don't know all about, for the relief of headaches; or the pains of rheumatism, neuritis or neuralgia, ask your doctor what he thinks about it—in comparison with Genuine Bayer Aspirin.

We say this because, before the discovery of Bayer Aspirin, most so-called "pain" remedies were advised against by physicians as being bad for the stomach; or, often, for the heart. And the discovery of Bayer Aspirin largely changed medical practice.

Countless thousands of people who have taken Bayer Aspirin year in and out without ill effect, have proved that the medical findings about its safety were correct.

Remember this: Genuine Bayer Aspirin is rated among the fastest methods yet discovered for the relief of headaches and all common pains... and safe for the average person to take regularly.

You can get real Bayer Aspirin at any drug store—simply by never asking for it by the name "aspirin" alone, but always saying BAYER ASPIRIN when you buy.

A PRICELESS ICE-BOX

WHEN Secretary Seward bought Alaska from Russia, scoffers called it his "Alaskan gold." Today there are more than a hundred salmon canneries scattered along its rugged coast, and the value of this delectable fish caught and canned there each year is from three to five times as much as Alaska's purchase price.

But it is not with Secretary Seward's wisdom that we are concerned today, but with the wisdom of serving this "Alaskan gold" as often as possible. Not only is it one of the cheapest of all foods, but one of the most nourishing. In fact, it is called "Alaskan gold" not because of the wealth it brings, but because it is one of the richest foods in health-giving qualities. Take vitamin D, "the sunshine vitamin." Canned salmon is full of it. The element that helps to prevent goiter is iodine. Canned salmon contains plenty of that, too.

Take Your Choice

There are three varieties of red salmon and two lighter colored salmon. One variety of red is called Chinook, or King; a second Red, Blueback or Sockeye; and a third Medium Red, or Coho. The two varieties of lighter colored salmon are known as Pink, or Chum. All five are flavorful and rich in food value, but the pink salmon which cost a little less are the best buy for cooked dishes and the red find favor for festive dishes like salads.

And what a variety of dishes one can make with this fish—casseroles, creamed dishes, cutlets, hash, loafs, molds, omelets, puddings, puffs, ramekins, rarebits, rolls, salads, sandwiches, even shortcakes and soufflés. If you are a good cook, you doubtless have many good salmon recipes already, but here are a couple that are out of the common run.

Tested Recipes

Salmon, Pea and Macaroni Casserole: Put the macaroni to cook in boiling salted water. You will need two cups of cooked macaroni. Flake the contents of one tall can salmon, removing bones. Drain one cup canned peas, grate one cup cheese and cut four slices bacon in halves. Make white sauce by cooking one tablespoon minced onion in three tablespoons butter a few minutes, adding two and a half tablespoons flour, then adding two cups milk slowly and stirring until smooth. Add two tablespoons chili sauce and season with salt and pepper. By this time the macaroni should be done. Drain it and fill the casserole in this order: half the macaroni, half the salmon, half the peas and half the white sauce. Repeat. Cover with cheese and lay bacon on top. Bake in a hot—400 degree—oven for about thirty minutes. Serves eight.

Salmon Hash: Break three-fourths cup salmon (about the contents of one small flat can) finely with a fork, removing any bones or skin but not discarding any of the liquor. Add three-fourths cup finely chopped cold boiled potato and one tablespoon heavy cream and season with salt and pepper. Spread out in a hot skillet in which about two tablespoons butter have been melted. Cover and cook gently until a nice brown on the bottom. Fold over like an omelet and remove to hot platter. Garnish with parsley. Serves two liberally.

MOKENA PLANS 2 ADDITIONAL WPA PROJECTS

The Mokena Village Board has been advised through the Village Engineer, Mr. McCoy of Chicago Heights that the village can secure another W. P. A. project by way of extension of water mains from Niethammer street west on First street to the Herman Schweser corner on Division street and from the Kolber corner south under the Rock Island tracks to the existing water main at the Albert Cappel corner on McGovney street. This project calls for an expenditure of $3,000 the entire cost of labor and material to be paid by the government, the only expense to the village being engineer's fees, and a few other incidentals amounting to a little over $300. It is understood the necessary papers for this project will be signed by the village officials this week.

In addition to this project the village is also considering a storm water sewer project along Wolf road north to the end of the village limits which would also be a P. W. A. project.

The severe cold weather has stopped work on the water main extension project begun along Niethammer and First streets. The forecast of this week seven lengths of water main were laid and caulked along Niethammer street.

TINLEY PARK METHODIST CHURCH

Paul L. Hastings, Minister
Church School 10 a. m.

Morning Worship 11 a. m.
Theme for Sunday morning: "God the Eternal Worker."

There is a tradition in some religious circles that God did His work in the long ago, at the time when He created the world. But Jesus suggested that "My Father worketh even until now." In our worship next Sunday morning we shall study the present work of God. What is God doing now? What is the purpose back of His work? What are His resources? Are there any limitations on His efforts? Is there any relation between a working God, and ourselves?

The worship services of this church are designed to minister to all the spiritual needs of men. Every item of the service is planned to help the worshiper to interpret and evaluate his daily life in the light of the will and purpose of God. Worship is not thought of as a temporary escape from life. It is rather an opportunity for us to learn to see more deeply into life.

Our plan of worship is neither strictly ritualistic nor utterly free. Believing that worship should be as broad as life itself, we strive to minister to the needs of people of various religious temperaments. We invite both those of Quaker and those of Episcopal inclinations to share with us in our services. We are confident that each will find something of value and meaning.

For the present Mr. Hastings is in Tinley Park only on Sunday. During the week he may be reached at Garrett Biblical Institute Evanston, Ill.

Taxpayers Foot City Homes Cost

Part of Funds for Building Houses Is Outright Gift to Tenants.

WASHINGTON. — The government is proceeding with its plans to build hundreds of homes and many apartment houses which it is going to rent to persons who have small incomes and cannot afford to pay high rental rates for their places to live. These properties are being built out of taxpayers' money whether it comes from farms or cities.

Part of the money used is actually a gift from Uncle Sam because no repayment of it ever is contemplated. About half of the cost of each dwelling place, therefore, is paid for by the government. The remainder constitutes a loan from the treasury and the government takes a mortgage for that amount.

Secret of Low Rentals.

By that method, apartments and houses can be rented at low rates because the government will be seeking interest and installment repayments only on half of the total cost. Tenants will be able to get living quarters for perhaps $7 or $8 a room per month.

But the properties have to be managed and they have to be managed according to government (New Deal) specifications. So Secretary Ickes and Prof. Rexford Guy Tugwell are running a school to train managers for the new homes and apartment houses that are built or are building.
